Anthrax, Leprosy, Etc.

Lo, The Navajo.

P. Rockefeller's Flier.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

A MAN is locked up in Oregon accused of plotting with Russian Bolsheviks to scatter germs of leprosy and anthrax in the United States. While they are investigating the man's leprosy and anthrax germs, they also might investigate his sanity.

WILL ROGERS says Lo, the poor Navajo Indian has oil on his land, but has got no money for his oil. While men took the Indians' oil money to build a short-cut bridge over the little Colorado river. No Indians use the bridge, but Indians paid for it. Rogers thinks the rest of their oil money will go to build the Boulder Canyon Dam. He mourns with Poor Lo.

ROGERS' kind heart does him credit, but he mourns needlessly. The greatest good to the greatest number is the thing. The worst thing for Indians would be to give them oil money. They would go to town and come back worse than when they went. It sounds cold blooded, but Indians without a lot of money are considerably happier than with it. That applies to many whites, also.

PERCY ROCKEFELLER is included among promoters of a new airmail service in the Caribbean Sea. To extend the line all the way down through South America, eventually, is the plan. Wall street gentlemen will find a "flier" in Caribbean flying service much safer than some fliers they took in Caribbean sugar, when sugar was around 25 cents a pound.

SECRETARY HOOVER, really interested in constructive work, submits to the President a plan to encourage commercial flying. Good will come of that. The nation alone can make America's air fleet what it should be.

A ROW of 14 graves in Mexico City's French cemetery contains 14 reasons for believing that Calles' regime and his successor's will be fairly permanent. Each of the 14 graves contains the body of a man shot to death for trying to get rid of Calles, or trying to make himself president. The Yaqui revolt in Sonora has collapsed with the surrender of 600 Indians, all in jail. The Mexican Army is "hunting down" and killing the remaining Yaqui rebels. It looks like peace in Mexico for awhile.

TROTSKY, who recently commanded the armies of Russia, under Lenin, and kept the various European armies out of Russia, is now in disgrace with his Communist friends.

He entered his carriage in the procession celebrating the ten anniversary of Bolshevism, but was turned out of the parade and hissed. They think he is too much of a bourgeois, too much interested in Russia's commercial prosperity. Trotsky only smiled, and perhaps thought what Disraeli said, when they howled him down in the House of Commons, "the time will come when you will hear me."

SENATOR WATSON says every thing that CAN be done, will be done, by Congress to stop the Mississippi floods. If that program is carried out, Mississippi floods will be stopped. Congress can, if it will. Herbert Hoover will show how it can be done, with the assistance of other able engineers.

THEFTS CHARGE

Automobile Stolen From W. L. Smith, Jr., Recovered.

With three youths under arrest here and two others held in Weston, W. Va., police today launched an investigation which they expect to unravel "higher-ups" in an alleged automobile stripping ring in the Ohio Valley.

Guy and Clarence Carson, 19 and 22, respectively, brothers, one living in Fenton street and the other in Walnut street, and Robert Pickens, 23, of Shadyside avenue, were arrested by Chief of Police McDermott, Patrolman Leslie Curran and Probation Officer John McShane last night as suspects in the theft of an automobile in Weston. They are alleged to have been in the stolen car.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "MONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

Chapter LV.

SALLY stopped dead still on the stairs.

A sudden fear went thrilling through her fear that John Nye would look up all at once and see her standing there in her dancing dress, with the little blue mask half covering her face.

For Sally had come to the place where she was deeply ashamed of her nightly exhibition dance on the polished floor of Aunt Emily's dining room.

To begin with, she had not been the least bit ashamed of dancing in public. She had been shy, but not ashamed at all. She had started out by being natural as a child that dances to the music of a street piano or with its own shadow in the sunlight.

Then Aunt Em had told her "shimmying" was a sight and a disgrace.

Next Mrs. Jerome had wept about it, and hunted up the old satin mask to hid her shame, as she put it.

Then, last of all, Ted Sloan had confessed that he was ashamed of making "a holy show" on the dance floor with her six nights a week.

It was no wonder that Sally's face grew hot and scarlet under its mask as she stood there on the wide steps, looking down into the hall below, and that she stepped quickly back into the shadow of the landing halfway up the flight.

"If John should see me!" she gasped inwardly, one hand on her breast where she could feel her heart beating away with all its might and main, not to mention speed.

Panic-stricken, she turned and flew up the stairs to her room. With the door safely locked, she stripped off the blue-and-silver dress, wiped the paint from her face, kicked off the satin slippers.

Five minutes later a very demure Sally slipped down the back stairs of the big house, enveloped in a clean, white bungalow apron.

"Where's our own Gilda Gray to-night?" asked Aunt Emily, puzzled, as she took her place behind the white enameled table and began to help Hilda, the new little waitress, put salads together expertly.

"Our own Gilda Gray decided not to do her stuff tonight," she answered the girl, trying to seem off-hand about it.

"Don't you feel well?" asked Aunt you'd better go back to getting a typewriter!" said she, when she had dashed back into the kitchen. She always spoke her mind, no matter how many people were around.

"I'm not ashamed of my job! You know I don't mind waiting on table most of the time," Sally came back at her hotly.

"Well, then what's the matter with you tonight?" Aunt Em wanted to know, tapping the table smartly with her knuckles.

"What on earth is that noise?"

Em, as she gave her a searching glance that took her in from head to foot.

"Never felt better since Hector was a pup!" Sally went on, with blithe sanglines. She certainly never had looked better.

"Well, then, what's the big idea of staying out here in the kitchen?" her Aunt went on. When she set her mind to find something out, she went right to the bottom of things. A diamond drill was nothing to be compared to her, when it came to digging up the truth.

"Well, if you must know," Sally finally blurted out, "John Nye is here tonight—and I don't want to dance in front of him!"

"He—hum?" Aunt Em was thoughtful. "So that's the way the wind blows, is it? Well, I've thought that right along."

Sally knew she had thought she was in love with John ever since that long-ago day, almost a year before, when John Nye had come to the house to take Millie for a drive. She said nothing, but went calmly on piling lettuce leaf upon lettuce leaf, and scooping out a hollow in the tomatoes before her on the table.

"Set those salads on the serving table in the dining room," commanded Aunt Em, when the last of them was finished and topped off by a spoonful of fluffy salad dressing.

But Sally shook her lovely, dark head. "Oh, no! Not me, Aunt Em!" she cried with determination in the very ring of her voice. "I'd have to be dragged by the hair of my head into that dining room tonight I'm not going anywhere near John Nye and his crowd. Not a chance!"

With an outraged snort, Aunt Em piled a tray with salads and bore them off to the dining room at high speed.

"If you're ashamed of this job

"I just don't want to go in where John Nye is—" Sally began, when her aunt broke in once more.

"You don't know what you want to do!" she declared. "You act like a simpleton about that man. You always have—and he doesn't know you're on earth! I should think you'd have more pride, Sally Jerome! Go and take a look at him now. Making roly-holy eyes at some little yellow-headed girl in there."

She waved a thin hand in the direction of the dining room.

Sally tiptoed out of the kitchen by the back door and went around the house to enter it by the side door.

Very softly she crossed the big, shadowy parlor, and looked through the wide arched doorway into the dining room.

She could see John Nye and his party plainly. There were eight people—four men and four girls. They were talking and laughing together as they helped themselves to the fried chicken and shoe-string potatoes that Hilda was passing around their table.

That is, all of them were talking and laughing except John Nye himself. His face was very serious as he lifted a large piece of golden-brown chicken from the platter to his plate. And he was paying no attention to the small blond girl who sat next to him, flirting with him just as hard as she could.

"He doesn't look as if he were having such a rip-roaring time," Sally remarked to herself, hidden in the shadows of the high-ceilinged, old-fashioned room.

She went back to the kitchen and began to beat up biscuit with a right good will.

"John Nye was here tonight for dinner," she told Millie when that light-hearted flapper came breezing into the house at midnight.

"You don't say!" The sea-blue eyes opened wide between their blackened lashes, and the painted mouth tilted up in a sarcastic smile. "So he's coming around again—trying to make things up with me, is he? Well, it won't get him anywhere, because if the Millie starts work for Davy Davidson's firm on Monday next!"

It was plain to Sally that she had lost all interest in John Nye. Without bothering to waste any more words on him, she went dancing up the stairs to bed, the red-silk clasp of her stockings flashing as she went.

Sally could hear her humming contentedly to herself as she went back and forth in her bedroom on her little feet.

Downstairs in the bright kitchen, Sally went on washing cups and saucers and plates and silver.

That was always the last job of her long day. To wash the dishes, and count them as she put them away on the shelves. Cups and saucers—and plates and silver. Cups—and saucers—

It was a long, monotonous job. Long and monotonous as Sally's days had begun to seem, or late.

"And so John Nye came here to see Millie!" she said to herself. "Then he must care for her after all!"

By the first of September Mr. Jerome had settled down into the daily life of The House by the Side of the Road.

He lay, silent and uncomplaining, in the big bed that had been Millie's room for a while. Three times a day Sally carried upstairs to him the food that the doctor had ordered. Soup and cooked fruit, for the most part. He took it like an obedient child.

Four times a day she gave little Beauregard Jerome, Jr., the milk that was the staff of life to him. At five every afternoon she took him a tiny cup of orange juice, and fed it to him, sip by sip.

At five she made her father comfortable for the night, and then settled the baby into his own little crib for his long night's sleep. Beau and Mabel had not even laid eyes on the baby for a week. Mabel was working overtime at getting Beau back to the "straight and narrow."

At six Mrs. Jerome had her dinner in the little private dining room on the south side of the house. She ate it with a library book propped up before her on the table, and her feet resting on a stool under it.

"No one knows how sick I am," she often wailed. "I'm just as sick as your father is, but I won't give in to it. He's well enough to be out of bed—and he could get up just as well as not."

Sally was desperately sorry for her.

But there came a day when even Mrs. Jerome could not say that her husband was well enough to be out of bed.

It was a cold and rainy day in the middle of the month. All day rain had come down in sheets, and brown leaves had come blowing down from the trees.

At 4:30 Sally was practicing the Savannah Stomp in her room, and talking to her mother at the same time. Mrs. Jerome was complaining about a brand new pain in a brand new place.

"I never had one before in the small of my back," she groaned. "And it's such a different kind of pain. It just takes my breath away." She caught her breath to show what she meant.

"Maybe a cup of hot tea would do me good," she went on, and then stopped suddenly, her mouth open, her eyes fixed with questioning fear.

From Mr. Jerome's room there was the sound of a long-drawn gasp, and then a thud—as if a heavy body had fallen to the floor.

"What on earth is that noise?" asked Sally, stopping midway in her dance, with her arms still flung out as her sides, and her toe just grazing the floor.

Rich Tin Mines Found.

That the Merranboy tin field near Darwin, Australia, equals any in the world for magnitude and consistency, is the report of experts with experience in deep English tin mines. For many years only small rich pockets in the field had been gouged out, but recently the company took out 1,000 tons in a face which averaged two per cent, and despite heavy costs and antiquated machinery, is showing a handsome profit.

Necklace is Priceless.

A jade necklace of a color and character so extraordinary that experts are unable to fix a price for it, is on display in London. Forty inches long, it has 108 beads, the size of small marbles, each bead being of a vivid bluish violet color never seen before by collectors.

Rev. Lulu Kell, former pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, opened a series of evangelistic meetings Sunday in Portland, Me. She will probably fill a number of other engagements in the New England states before returning to her home in East Liverpool for a visit.

Rev. Kell has been meeting with success since entering the evangelistic field and has conducted services in the various sections of the country.

PASTOR MOVES IN NEW MANSE

Rev. F. F. Froese, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, is now occupying the manse which was formerly the old church, near Third and Washington street. Work on remodeling the church began last spring and was recently completed.

Plans are now being discussed for holding a series of meetings in the church.

Straying away from camp near Roy, Minn., Walter Peach, 12, of Minneapolis, Minn., was lost for nearly 48 hours in a dense woods. On the second day a bear treed him, keeping his vigil at the base of the tree until day-break. A few hours later hunters found the youngster, suffering from exposure.

WHEELING SEEKS SCHOOL MEET

Next meeting of the West Virginia Educational association will probably be held next year in Wheeling, according to an announcement made yesterday by Supt. Fred L. Teal of that city.

More than 4,000 teachers and principals from all sections of the state were in attendance.

The northern panhandle was represented at the convention by approximately 50 instructors.

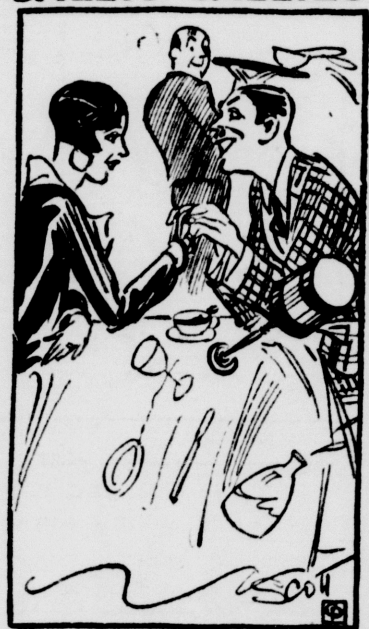

Minstrel Show Planned. Plans will shortly be formed for the annual minstrel show which will be given under the auspices of the Welfare department of the Homer Laughlin China company. Employees of the various plants of the company will comprise the cast.

Turns to New Crops. Ravages of the "witchbroom" pest has caused great havoc on the cacao plantations, formerly the chief source of wealth in Ecuador. Consequently planters are turning to other crops and are importing American tractors for use in the rice and cotton plantations for the coastal regions, where farm labor is scarce because the Indians of the interior do not thrive in the tropical climate of the lowlands.

Spain expects a bumper olive crop this season.

SATURATION.

One of the ablest manufacturers in this country gives a sensible definition of the "saturation point." We are always hearing about the saturation point for motor cars and for other products. In reality is there any such thing? Of course there is, theoretically, but not practically. The saturation point for any given article will be reached when "everybody has one and none ever wears out."

NOT GLOOMY.

A Chicago orator paints a gloomy picture of the world. He asks for the "re-establishment" of justice and fair dealing. And a Chicago newspaperman sets out to answer him. Says the defender of today's times and today's life:

"Compare the Roman empire with its complete domination by wealth and family. Compare the England of Charles II with its utter cynicism and moral degradation. Compare the United States of Grant's administration with the United States of today. Would anybody trade the farmers of America today for the peasantry of Europe a hundred years ago?"

STUDY YESTERDAY

Before you begin to paint pictures of the world today in comparison with the world of yesterday, be sure that you have your history on straight. Be sure that you have learned something about the world of yesterday. There may indeed be evidence of a coming decline in civilization. This writer is inclined to think there are. But so far—in the present years—the state of mankind in the most enlightened countries is far happier than it was three or four or five hundred years ago.

Mexico Hits Child Labor.

Mexico is going after employees of child labor, and especially those who employ the little workers overtime. A government examination of those who came before the children's court showed that child labor caused physical inferiority and a tendency toward delinquency. The national commission handling the problem will also demand hygienic working conditions for children.

Railway to Open Up Panay.

No Aid for Wets

In defeat of the Marshall bill by the voters Tuesday the public has been led to construe it as a rebuke to the Anti-Saloon League when, as a matter of fact, it is a direct slap at road-side courts and hi-jacking "speed cops" by the motor-riding public of the state.

Had it not been for the Ohio Automobile association and its thousand of members throughout the state, particularly in the rural sections, the Marshall bill quite likely would have been ratified, and speed traps would have found their way to the side of every road in Ohio.

Ohio has a million three hundred fifty thousand passenger car owners, many of whom have been arrested and haled before these pseudo courts, and feel, as a result, that they have not only been unjustly prosecuted, but have a legitimate grievance against this type of law enforcement, so called.

Of course, any measure calculated to be of any material aid to the dry cause usually suffers defeat in Ohio's four largest cities. That is to be expected. It is nothing new.

But analyzing the rural vote Tuesday against the Marshall bill one is constrained to admit that it wasn't the so-called "wet" element in the country that voted against the proposal. There is no "wet" element in rural Ohio; just men and women who dislike to be shanghaied and they turned thumbs down on the scheme, voting "no" overwhelmingly.

In the old days the highways of Ohio were dotted thick with rural motor cops trying to earn an honest (?) dollar by "pinching" motorists, whether they were going at an excessive rate of speed, or whether they were observing the statutes in every respect. And once "pinched" by one of these fly-by-night officers, the motorist had no recourse except to pay the hi-jacking fine which the road-side justice of the peace assessed.

That is why the Ohio Automobile association fought the bill, and that is why, to a large extent, it was defeated. Ohio automobile drivers have reached the point where they are no longer content to let these road-side courts wax fat for no reason at all. And rightly so.

At Railroad Crossings

Drivers of busses are required not merely to slow down and look before crossing railroad tracks, but to come to a full stop in order to do their looking and listening. In many places where street car tracks cross railroad tracks a switch mechanism is so arranged that the trolley car cannot advance across the railroad until its motorman or conductor has got out, crossed the tracks and released the switch. Motorists heretofore have merely been asked to be careful according to their own judgment and sense. The other day Justice Holmes of the United States supreme court read a decision which outlines very clearly a motorist's duty in crossing railroad tracks.

"When a man goes upon a railroad track," declared the judge, "he knows that he goes to a place where he will be killed if a train comes upon him before he is clear of the track."

"He knows that he must stop for the train, not the train for him."

"In such circumstances, it seems to us that if a driver cannot be sure otherwise whether a train is dangerously near, he must stop and get out of his vehicle, although obviously he will not often be required to do more than stop and look."

"It seems to us that if he relies upon not hearing the train, or upon any signal, and takes no further precaution, he does so at his own risk."

"It is true that the question of due care very generally is left to the jury. But we are dealing with a standard of conduct, and when the standard is clear it should be laid down once for all by the courts."

In other words, it is the driver's own fault if he is run into by a train.

The decision was given in a suit claiming damages from a railroad for the death of a motorist on the ground that the tracks were obscured by trees. It makes very clear that the blame for crossing accidents cannot be placed on the railroads. Such a decision ought to make cautious drivers out of a least a few of the present careless ones.

Another Flood

Floods, tornadoes, earthquakes are not partial. They strike in unexpected places, in or out of season.

If there were any New Englanders who never quite grasped the gravity of the spring and summer floods in the Mississippi Valley, they have now learned at first hand the terrors of rushing waters, out of bounds, bringing death and destruction to individuals and communities.

People in other sections who still have been spared such terrors have their sympathies aroused again. They look out from their own windows upon peaceful streets with normal traffic and business. If they can imagine those streets filled with water, with only tree tops and house roofs showing above its muddy swirls, they can begin to imagine what happens in a flooded area. Then, if they think of the cold, the lack of shelter and safe drinking water, the disruption of sanitary systems, the danger of typhoid and pneumonia, they may get some conception of what many of their fellow-countrymen have suffered this year.

Fortunately the flood waters in Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut have already commenced to subside. The lives that were lost cannot be restored, but property damage can eventually be repaired.

The sympathy of the whole nation goes out to those New England flood sufferers, and the whole country is reminded again that flood prevention is a big job and one of the most important ones crying for prompt, intelligent, effective action.

Pathetic Figures—

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—They were talking—a group of those expert reporters who sat in on the world's big, best assignments—of what men and women do under stress of a great emotional crisis. Particularly those who out of a seemingly clear sky are hit by scandal.

One of the great movie comedians, untrussed by a charge of murder, spent most of his time awaiting trial in his garage. There he sat in silence in his huge car shifting the gears for hours at a time. He refused to eat and sleep for days at a stretch.

An actress of great beauty who figured in the death of a well known sporting character used to crouch in the corner of her darkened cell in the Tombs, dry-eyed and staring at the drab wall, until she toppled over in a faint. This would happen several times a day.

A reporter leaped out of a taxicab one stormy night and bounded up the steps of a Fifth Avenue mansion to tell the master of the house his daughter had been killed in a joy ride with a prominent married man. The father swayed as a beef at the blown of an axe. Then he went to the bathroom and sent a bullet through his head.

A society woman who married a scapegrace foreign nobleman was called to a police station, during the first week of their honeymoon, to identify a man caught red-handed in a hotel jewel robbery. The culprit was her husband. She spat in his face and walked away.

One of the prominent bankers whose escapades with a stage lady resulted in the breaking up of his home and the loss of position, used to remain in seclusion until darkness and then go to a mid-town park, where he would sit and whistle until the coming of dawn.

Most men and women whose world topples about them, with headlines ringing their infamy, turn to some form of religion for consolation. Nearly all their reading is from the Bible.

Many athletic young men fill the languid role of life guards at various beach resorts during summer to pay for their winter at colleges. The job, it seems offers unusual opportunities for desirable marriages. Last summer's crop included three who married heiresses. From loaf to loaf, as it were.

Abe Martin Says:

What little courtesy there is left seems to be confined entirely to pedestrians.

After many years of the closest observation I'm more convinced than ever that the louder a fellow laughs at nothin' the more popular he is.

Indeed there's compensation on the beaches for women as well as men. Look at those diving ducklings who marry the millionaires or become stars in the films.

This story is going the rounds of the underworld and concerns the frustrated holdup of a Harlem bank as the result of the tip-off of a stool pigeon. The job was to be done by two carloads of crooks who would disguise as motion picture players—camera men, a director, with megaphone and puttees, pseudo actors and actresses in makeup and such. An agent was to attempt to secure permission to use the bank during the noon lull for a movie holdup. Faked letters of introduction from a film executive doing a heavy business with the bank had been secured. The policemen in the neighborhood were to be duped into keeping the crowds back at nearby corners. Then the bank was actually to be held up by men known to be killers when foiled. True or not, it showed rare criminal ingenuity. Somehow this paragraph seems all mixed up, but we hope you catch the idea.

A hotel opened recently near Greenwich Village bearing the lyrical name of Honeycomb Harbor. It failed to draw patronage, and the management discovered prospective patrons did not care to be thought newlyweds. Under another name the hotel is doing a fair business.

A 42nd street manicure parlor sends out circulars with the line: "Come in and give our little girls a hand."

Not since I had a youthful crush on Della Fox and watched her smoke a cigarette from the gallery have I been so thrilled by an individual performance on the stage as that of Harry Tyler in James Gleason's otherwise fair to middling comedy, "The Shansons." Mr. Tyler plays the part of a ham vaudeville actor and makes it hum.

the remaining cities had one official in charge of the type of signal and another in charge of installation and operation, or one official or department in charge of type and installation, and another in charge of operation.

How Turns Should Be Made.
In most of the cities covered in the survey, the report shows, right turns are permitted to be made only on the "Go" or green light signal and the committee believes that all right turns should be so restricted. Where left-hand turns are permitted—and there is a debate among traffic authorities as to the desirability of abolishing the left turn—the committee says the most satisfactory method of making them is probably as follows: Approach turn intersection from the right, go to right lane of traffic on the "Go" signal, and complete turn to left when "Go" signal is given in new direction. The presence of a traffic officer, or unusual conditions such as irregular intersections, short blocks, and the like, may make exceptions to this method necessary or advisable, it is stated.

The variations in the signals themselves is shown by the fact that of 79 cities reporting the use of two or three lens signal systems, 53 use the words "Go" and "Stop" respectively on the green and red lenses; one uses the word "Stop" on the red, but nothing on the green lens; 34 use the word "Caution" on the amber or yellow lenses, while six use the word "Walk," three the word "Change," and two the abbreviation "Ped."

The committee concludes that in the interest of standardization the words "Go," "Stop," and "Caution" should be the ones generally adopted for use on their respective lenses, and that such words should be used unless the relative positions of the light also denote their color in standard manner or unless the shape of the lens denotes the color also. Preferably, a standard lettering, position, and shape should be used. Flashing red lights in all directions at intersections is believed to be the best first signal, and electric flashing beacons are recommended as the most satisfactory for protecting street car zones.

Four-way cable suspension of the signals above the intersections is used by most cities, with the four-way post at the center of the crossing second in favor, the next most popular equipment being the one-way horizontal or vertical bracket placed on the four far corners.

The American Automobile association also has been making a study of the measures adopted by the larger cities of the country for the solution of the problem of motor traffic regulation and control and it says that while standardization is still on the far horizon of the future, the cities are nevertheless "muddling through" to a clear vision of what must be done.

Latest models of French automobiles show American influence in body designs.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Electric Traffic Signals.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Motorists on tour frequently find themselves confused by the different kinds of electric traffic signals, and the varying rules governing them, that they encounter in different cities and towns. Not infrequently they find themselves under arrest for infractions of the regulations unwittingly committed when they are trying their best to conform to the laws. And then when they get back home they sometimes find that they are so mixed up as a result of their experiences elsewhere that they have to learn their own signals all over again.

Differences in the types of electric signals is one cause of confusion, and that is increased by variations in the location of the signals. In one city they will be suspended over the street intersections, and in another they will surmount towers or box-like posts erected in the center of the intersections. In one place they will be located on the near, right-hand side of the crossing as one approaches, and in another on the far right-hand side, while occasionally they are to be found on all four corners.

Not knowing where a signal is to be found, and being used to looking for it in a certain location, it is an easy matter for a motorist to fall completely to see a signal that is located unfamiliarly to him, and to drive past it when the light is against him. That usually leads to an interview with a traffic policeman, and often the visitor has to tell his story to the judge, and tell it convincingly, to persuade the officials that he has not been guilty of deliberate violations of the regulations or of gross carelessness.

Again, in one city right-hand turns are made on the red light and left-hand turns only on the green; in another all turns must be made only on the green. Similarly, in one city one pulls up in the center of the street in making a left turn, whereas in another he must pull over to the extreme right of the crossing and stop there for a change in the light that permits his completing the turn.

Standardization Is Recommended.

This state of affairs has grown so serious with the increasing number of electric signals in all parts of the country—a total of 2401 signals are soon to be put in operation in 83 cities now having a total of 3203 signal-controlled intersections—that the committee of the American Engineering Council, which is making a nation-wide survey of traffic conditions, has made a preliminary report in which it states that the widely varying local conditions make imperative a concerted movement toward standardization. This is regarded as even more important than that there should be a determination of the best types of signals and the more efficient control devices, etc.

"It should be the intent of the recommendations, however," says the report, "to establish a uniform meaning, location, etc., of signals, so that if generally adopted they will be of great assistance to the motorist, city officials, and manufacturers of signal devices."

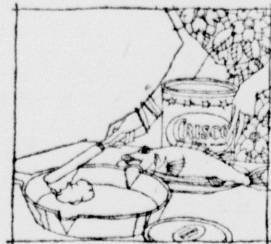

While the possibilities of the recommendations referred to are made apparent by the report, it is also equally apparent that practically no uniformity has as yet been established except where cities have chanced to secure their equipment from the same manufacturer, and often, even in this case, the types of equipment vary so widely that they are in no sense a standard. It has been found, also, that there is here and there a city that has more than one kind of electric signal, one for the congested centers and another for the outlying districts.

Further to increase the likelihood of confusion, the officials responsible for the type, installation, and operation of electric traffic signals vary widely with the different cities, and it not infrequently happens, says the report, that different officials within the city are responsible for the different activities, without unified control or direction.

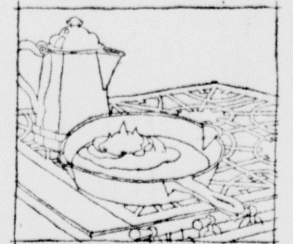

Of 76 cities reporting in this matter, 10 indicated that different officials are responsible for the type, installation, and operation of the signals; 27 cities have one official in charge of all these activities, while

To fry FISH without smoke or odor

Put Crisco into cold frying pan. To thoroughly cook the food (for example, a fish) without smoke or searing, fry slowly, using enough Crisco to partly cover it. It will not require the constant attention frying does when only a little fat is used.

Put frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted put in a small piece of bread. As soon as bread starts to brown put in the fish.

Cook slowly until fish is nearly done, then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the pan the fish is easily turned without breaking, if you wait until it is almost done.

Strain the Crisco into an empty can and use it for the next thing you want to fry. No one will know you have fried fish in it.

To test your cooking fat—taste it.
Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

Squeezing out blackheads makes larger, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calomite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one big or little, will disappear at once.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—After recovering a small portion of the ground lost in Wednesday's reactionary session, the industrial stocks developed an irregular tone in the early trading today, and the movement of prices was somewhat confused. The pools in the specialty stocks made a show of strength in the first period, but it required only moderate offerings of Texas Gulf Sulphur, Houston Oil, Hudson Motor, Packard and other speculative leaders to depress slightly below the previous close.

Three important events of the day, the Steel Corporation's monthly forward tonnage report, the General Motors' dividend declaration and the weekly report on brokers' loans, occupied the attention of the financial district, but only one of them, the corporation's tonnage report, could influence the day's trading. General Motors' dividend statement will not be released until after the close of the market, and the brokers' loan statement will also be published after three o'clock.

A few of the industrial leaders advanced a point or two.

CITY BEGINS
20TH STREET
SEWER WORK

Service Director Ashley
Rounds up Forces.

THREE-WEEK JOB
Project Calls for More Than 600 Feet
of Pipe.

Under the direction of City Engineer R. D. McGill, Service Director George Ashley and Mayor W. L. Fogo, the city started operations today on the construction of the new Twentieth street sewer.

Materials, including sections of two different sizes and kinds of pipe, recently arrived on the job. The sewer line will be over 600 feet in length, extending from the upper side of Clark avenue to the McQueen's Run storm sewer.

A strong, corrugated metal pipe will be laid under Clark avenue to withstand the vibration from street car and vehicular traffic. Vitrified pipe will be laid for the remainder of the distance.

If the municipal forces get an even break with the weather, they expect to have the work completed within three weeks.

The Seventeenth street sewer proposal, however, is still in an indefinite status following its defeat at the election Tuesday.

The bond issue to provide $18,000 for the work, while given a majority of the votes, lacked by 38 ballots the 55 per cent required to make it legal.

ERSKINE SIX

(4-door sedan, fully equipped)

victor in test of speed and endurance

American Automobile Association certifies to record unequalled by any stock closed car priced below One Thousand Dollars

NOTWITHSTANDING heavy rain and high wind throughout three-fourths of the test, an Erskine Sedan, fully equipped, traveled 1298.484 miles during twenty-four hours. This meant an average time of 54.103 miles per hour.

No stops were made except for oil and fuel and to change three spark plugs. These stops are included in the time. Immediately following the completion of the test the sedan went five miles at an average of almost 62 miles per hour—Think of it!

This record was made October 12-13 at the Atlantic City Speedway under the sanction and observation of the American Automobile Association. After the test the car was torn down by the technical committee and certified as a stock car in every respect.

What it proves!

Here is positive proof of extraordinary performance, of stamina and durability, of sound design from quality materials and superior workmanship in a car priced below $1000—proof of unusual pep and power whether or not you care to drive long distances with the throttle wide open.

What Owners Say!

Owners of the Erskine Six write us so enthusiastically you would think them to be salesmen. Send a postal inquiry to the Studebaker factory at South Bend and you will be sent, free of charge, comments which hundreds of Erskine owners have volunteered concerning their cars.

REVUE AND MEIGHAN PICTURE AT CERAMIC

Five Girls and Boy Appear in Stage Offering—Screen Feature is "We're All Gamblers."

Nat Mann & Company, a revue, featuring six people—five girls and a boy—is the headliner of the vaudeville motion picture offering opening a three-day engagement today at the Ceramic theatre.

The vaudeville act, to be presented in conjunction with the Thomas Meighan picture, "We're All Gamblers," a Paramount production, includes high class dancing, singing and comedy.

Meighan's picture is based on Sidney Howard's New York stage success "Lucky Sam McCarver" according to an announcement by Lucien Hubbard, featured producer who supervised the production.

Howard came into national prominence when his sensational play "They Knew What They Wanted" as produced by the Theatre Guild in New York, was designated the 1925 Pulitzer Prize Play. This season he duplicated his previous successes with "Ned McCobb's Daughter."

"Lucky Sam McCarver" the first of Howard's plays to reach the screen, tells a romance of a rugged, lower-class New Yorker and an aristocratic society leader and their effort to find happiness by merging their widely diverse backgrounds. Thomas Meighan, plays the role created in the stage play by John Cromwell and Marietta Miller fills the part played by Clara Eames.

Hope Loring noted scenarist, made the adaptation, writing her screen play from Howard's drama. James Cruze, of "The Covered Wagon" and "Old Ironsides" fame, directed.

"NAKED TRUTH" IS HELD OVER

Strand to Feature Show for Women Tonight.

According to the requests of the hundreds of women who could not get in to the Strand theatre on Monday night to see the "Naked Truth," the management has arranged to show them the picture tonight.

Dealing as it does with the subject of social hygiene, "Naked Truth" is exactly what its name implies.

According to President Coolidge, truth and beauty are inseparably related. Considering some people we know, that statement looks actionable. —Canton Repository.

Though normally a Democratic state, Kentucky demonstrated that politics are likely to matter little when the racing issue is raised. J. C. W. Beckham, Democratic candidate, took a firm stand against pari-mutuel betting machines.

Religious Leaders Commend Red Cross Service

Rev. S. PARKES CADMAN
President of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America

WILLIAM CARDINAL O'CONNELL
Archbishop of Boston

RABBI LEON HARRISON
Temple Israel, St. Louis

All faiths endorse Red Cross Membership Roll Call—Leaders of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish churches in the United States call on their fellow-members to support the Annual Membership Appeal to be held from Armistice to Thanksgiving Day.

OUTSTANDING representatives of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths in America are unanimous in commending the American Red Cross for its good work and in recommending their followers to support that organization's Eleventh Annual membership enrollment during the November Roll Call, from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving. The Red Cross is asking this year for 5,000,000 members. In statements received at Red Cross national headquarters at Washington, three nationally known religious leaders declare themselves in unmistakable terms of praise and endorsement of what the Red Cross stands for and what it has accomplished. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, President of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in a statement entitled: "The Red Cross and the Churches," declares that the Roll Call assumes exceptional interest this year because of the extraordinary burden placed upon the Red Cross by the Mississippi Valley floods.

"It met the emergency so splendidly as to deserve the gratitude of the Nation," says Dr. Cadman. "Its continuing responsibility for dealing with the after-effects of the flood give it a special claim upon our generous support at this time." In Dr. Cadman's opinion, not since the great war has there been such a demonstration of the value of the Red Cross.

"Surely every citizen who has caught the spirit of religion will desire to contribute a dollar to this great humanitarian service and with the gift breathe a prayer to Almighty God that the people of this nation may be lifted to higher planes of living through sharing with those who suffer in great disasters," concludes the well known minister.

His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, and the Primate of the Catholic church in the United States, is equally outspoken in his commendation. "This organization has comforted the stricken and the unfortunate of our nation and of other countries in untold ways and with unbounded success during the past year," says the Cardinal. "It has advanced the fine traditions which years of faithful service have merited in its favor. It has spent itself assuaging human suffering and deserves the unstinted cooperation of all in whose name it has endeavored to carry on the work of God and perform the highest of virtues, Charity."

His Eminence is sure that the loyal devotion of the American people to the cause of the Red Cross will enable it to continue its noble accomplishments.

From Rabbi Leon Harrison of Temple Israel, St. Louis, comes an appeal addressed "To Men and Women with Kind Hearts." "Do something to cause Thanksgiving among the friendless and stricken by joining the Red Cross," urges the Jewish leader. He points out that it means but little in financial outlay but much to the cause of Humanity. "In this cause we will unite," he continues, "Catholics, Protestants and Jews; men of every religion and men of no religion; for the differences that are theological can never extend to the elementary duties of humanity."

In conclusion Rabbi Harrison calls upon every American to join "this great and blessed organization."

"KING" PURNELL MUST ABDICATE

Court Rules he Betrayed Women and Girls.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 10.—"King" Benjamin Purnell, who has ruled the House of David with an iron hand for years, must abdicate, Judge Louis H. Fead decided in an opinion filed here today.

Purnell is guilty of betrayal of women and young girls of the colony through "use of sacred aspirations of religion to gratify his lust," Judge Fead's decision reads. For such conduct Purnell must relinquish title to the House of David and leave the colony, the judge decreed.

Marshall Bill Vote

the Marshall bill by an adverse majority of 459,604 votes and of the chiropractors' bill by 241,596 votes is indicated by practically complete unofficial returns at the offices of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown today.

All except one of the 8,717 precincts throughout the state had reported unofficial figures covering Tuesday's state-wide elections. The lone missing precinct is in Pike county.

Unofficial returns from 8,716 precincts, as tabulated by Secretary Brown, gave:

For the Marshall bill, 451,933; against, 911,537.

For the chiropractors' bill, 523,796; against, 765,292.

It was announced at the secretary of state's office that no more tabulations will be made until after receipt of complete unofficial returns by mail. It was not expected that all these returns will be in before Friday.

Election officials pointed out that a number of discrepancies exist between the returns telephoned to the secretary of state's office election night and on Wednesday from the county election boards, and the unofficial figures which are being received by mail. These errors, it was stated, were all relatively small, and would not materially affect the general result of the election.

GOV. DONAHAY MAY NOT CALL ASSEMBLY MEET

Advisers Urge Him Not to Reconvene State Solons.

DEBATES ACTION

Executive Says he is Interested in Election Reforms.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10.—Possibility that Governor Vic Donahay may decide not to call a special session of the Ohio legislature loomed today.

It became known today that intimate advisers of the governor are urging him not to reconvene the Buckeye state solons as a result of the overwhelming defeat of the Marshall bill at Tuesday's statewide election.

Donahay, when questioned by newspaper men today, asserted that he has not made up his mind as to whether he will call a special session when asked if he would recommend legislation providing for a system of inferior courts, or other methods as a substitute for jurisdiction of village mayors and justices of the peace in liquor cases, the governor replied that he did not know what action he would take in the matter, if any.

The governor said his primary interest was in election reforms. It was shortly after the Ohio legislature last spring failed to pass measures embodying so-called election reforms, endorsed by the governor, that state members were issued from the governor's office that Donahay, probably, would call a special legislative session early next year for the purpose of amending Ohio's election laws.

Deny Need of Action

State officials who are intimate advisers of the governor today expressed belief that "nothing could be accomplished" in calling a special legislative session. They pointed out that legislative leaders and a majority of both houses were politically opposed to Donahay and that the same legislative matters proposed for consideration at a special session were discussed at length at the last session of the solons.

There is no need for immediate legislative action because of the defeat of the Marshall bill, these officials argued.

Arguing against consideration of any matter involving the wet-dry issue at a special legislative session, friends of Governor Donahay today expressed belief that existing courts are capable of taking care of all liquor cases.

They pointed out that these cases can be disposed of in municipal, probate and common pleas courts.

TODAY

If this country doesn't think it worth while to spend half a billion once and for all to stop floods that cost a billion at a time, it is a foolish country.

THE private detectives hired by a defendant in the Fall-Sinclair case are unable to prove their statement that they were trying to protect our sacred jury system when they trailed members of the jury, looked up their financial condition, found out when the mortgages were coming due. They wanted to make sure that wicked Uncle Sam would not bribe the jurors to send good Mr. Fall or kind Mr. Sinclair to jail unjustly.

Will the government take this supply?

NEW YORK CITY'S birth rate in 15 years has dropped 25 per cent. Fortunately the death rate shows a decline of 18 per cent. The marvel is that so many are born and remain alive in the unnatural condition of city life.

RUSSIAN Communists sent their men to tell the poor Chinamen how to "throw off their chains" and now the ungrateful Chinese help an anti-Bolshevik attack on the Russian consulate. The Chinese are an old, strange people, and you cannot be quite sure how they will "react" to propaganda or anything else. They will no more change to Communism after 40 centuries of Confucianism than rabbits would change from lettuce to raw beef.

DEMS WILL MEET ON JANUARY 12

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The Democratic national committee, which has been hibernating since the great catastrophe in Madison Square Garden, will meet in Washington on Jan. 12 to select the 1928 convention city.

Coincident with this gathering, a movement is now afoot to revive the ancient custom of holding a Jackson day dinner. The capital will be full of Democrats, in and out of congress, and those presidential aspirants not domiciled here could be invited according to those who are favorable to the project.

Akron Banker Dies

AKRON, O., Nov. 10.—Funeral services for Nelson G. Stone, 74, chairman of the board of directors of the National City bank of Akron, will be held here Saturday, it was announced today. Stone died late Wednesday of complications, following an illness of 14 weeks.

MAYOR'S FRIENDS CELEBRATE WIN

Friends of Mayor Ralph C. Benadum staged a belated celebration in honor of his reelection at an early hour today by discharging fireworks in all sections of the city.

Men, in automobiles, met at the Jethro bridge and drove to the center of the city, thence to East End. The detonations awakened many who believed that the police were engaged in a running gun battle with bandits.

FEDERAL PROBE

Government Contends he Paid Burns Detectives.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Another Sinclair official, Sheldon Clark, was formally charged by the government today with conspiracy to tamper with the jury in the Teapot Dome conspiracy trial.

Harry F. Sinclair, the millionaire oil magnate, who was on trial with ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, and H. Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration company, have already been named in the "tampering" accusation.

Deny Need of Action

State officials who are intimate advisers of the governor today expressed belief that "nothing could be accomplished" in calling a special legislative session. They pointed out that legislative leaders and a majority of both houses were politically opposed to Donahay and that the same legislative matters proposed for consideration at a special session were discussed at length at the last session of the solons.

PEACE BOARD IN ANTHRACITE FIELD URGED

Mount Carmel, Pa., Congress Outlines Proposal.

THREE PURPOSES

Plan to Guard Welfare and Promote Prosperity.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, (Copyright, 1927, by International News Service).

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Nov. 10.—The creation of a permanent semi-public governing board to guard the welfare and promote prosperity for the anthracite industry was the goal today of the anthracite cooperative congress.

This proposed board, with the public holding a voice equal to that of the miners and operators combined, will wield a tremendous influence over the hard coal industry, if the hopes of its sponsors are crowned with success. The board's three principal purposes would be to insure clean coal, to create new sales fields and to prevent future strikes.

Under present plans, the proposed board would comprise 21 members, of whom five would represent the miners, five the operators and 11 the general public. It would act as a board of directors to a much larger organization to be created throughout the whole anthracite region.

A series of conventions will be called shortly in cities and towns across the anthracite belt. It was estimated that 97 anthracite communities would be asked to enter the larger organization.

UNITED STATES STILL HAS CASH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The United States is still in a fair condition of prosperity.

The money will be used in retiring outstanding bonds of the second liberties.

Probes Alleged Election Frauds

TOLEDO, Nov. 10.—Assistant Attorney General A. C. Davis, here to investigate alleged election frauds and irregularities, had delayed the opening of the grand jury probe. Davis said he would sift the charges thoroughly but made no announcement as to when the matter would be presented to the grand jury.

How would you divide 999 eggs among 1000 soldiers? The answer is easy—shoot one soldier.

Speaking of worthlessness, we overheard this one the other day. "What's that fellow worth?" somebody asked. "Well," was the answer, "he just lacks a dollar and a half of being worth a d—!"

MIDLAND PLANS TO IMPROVE LINK IN RIVER ROAD

ASK REMOVAL OF ALL WIRES ALONG AVENUE

Solicitor is Instructed to File Court Action.

NO PARLEY HERE

Investigation Ordered Into Change in Fare Zone.

Preliminary steps toward repaving Midland avenue, Midland's main thoroughfare and a link in the East Liverpool-Beaver highway, and the elimination of high tension wires now strung through the steel city were taken by borough council last night.

Solicitor Richard S. Holt was instructed to prepare an ordinance for repaving of the street and to file court action to compel the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company to repair the 20-foot strip between its tracks.

State highway department will aid in construction of the road, Robert Lloyd, president of council, told members.

Council will pass on the ordinance at a special session to be called by Lloyd when the legislation is framed. Joint suit against the traction company and the Ohio Power company will be pushed through court by the borough in an effort to force the traction and power concerns to remove high tension wires now strung on poles in Midland avenue. Holt was instructed at last night's session to "proceed with the prosecution of the suit."

Council refused to consider proposal of a conference at Holt's office in Beaver this afternoon with Duquesne Light and Power company attorneys, who are said to be interested in the wire tangle because of an emergency power agreement with the Ohio concern.

Suggestion that wires be carried on poles through other streets than Midland avenue, made by company attorneys to Holt, was not entertained by council.

Holt was also directed to investigate change of a street car zone within the borough, making necessary payment of two fares by passengers riding from one end of Midland to the other.

A large power plant will be constructed in connection with the $4,500,000 Masaryk dam at Strekov, Czechoslovakia.

MIDLAND PAVES WAY FOR NEW INCINERATOR

Council Orders Plans for Erection of Disposal Plant.

TO COST $35,000

Vote on Ordinance for Fairview Road Improvement.

Plans for Midland's proposed $35,000 incinerator will be prepared by the borough engineer, as a result of action taken last night by council.

Preliminary surveys indicate the selection of a site in the west end of the borough, between the Midland-East Liverpool highway and the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad. Proposed location is on property of the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel company.

Construction of a municipal incinerator is made necessary by the unsatisfactory disposal system now in effect. Midland garbage is now dumped and burned on slag piles in yards of the Crucible company.

Ordinance for grading, straightening and slugging of Fairview road from Wood lane to the north limits of the borough was passed on first reading.

The road will be a connecting link between Midland business sections and a new state road to be completed soon through Ohioville and other communities.

Council will view the site of Fairview road at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Fire committee will receive proposals from the American LaFrance company, makers of the chemical and hose truck owned by the borough, for rebuilding of the present truck or its replacement with a new engine.

Assessments against property owners for their share of cost of the recently completed Beaver avenue improvement will be figured by the borough engineer.

Stops That Tough Hang-On Cough That Racks Your Whole Body

For ordinary coughs any simple sweet sugary cough syrup will probably do.

But when you want to throw out of your system one of those obstinate, old timers, that simply won't be conquered, but lingers on and on causing sleepless nights and days of torment then you've just got to have a REAL cough medicine.

Then you must ask your druggist for a bottle of Broncholine Emulsion for the harder and tougher and tighter they come the more joy Broncholine gets in knocking them out.

Broncholine isn't a cheap cough conqueror, mind you, for first raters are never cheap. But if you are one of the unlucky ones that a persistent, health destroying cough is pushing towards the grave, get a bottle today and notice how the first dose takes right hold and soothes the raw sore membrane.

Often three or four doses bring blessed relief and half a bottle forces the most stubborn, die-hard cough into submission.

"A bottle of magic" one old man calls Broncholine Emulsion. He was all worn out and ready to give up when a friend brought him in the good news about Broncholine.

Don't let a cough hang on—it's dangerous company—Get rid of it quick. Ask any up to the times druggist for a bottle of Broncholine Emulsion.

SWINDLE SCHEME NIPPED IN BUD

Two Men Being Held in Wellsburg in Alleged Extortion Plot.

What is believed to have been a scheme to swindle a number of Brooke county foreigners was nipped in the bud this week with the arrest of Eli Maranche and George Spira by Sheriff R. M. Lowe. Both men were lodged in jail at Wellsburg pending an investigation of their activities.

In 1923, two well-dressed men of foreign descent, approached Mrs. George Patko at her residence in McKinleyville, a mining settlement and informed her that a rich relative had died and left her $25,000, with the stipulation, however, that she in turn distribute a portion of the heritage among her kinsfolk.

To show that she would act properly as custodian, Mrs. Patko was requested to place with the two men $2,000, which they said, would be immediately rebated when she complied with the terms of the will. Mrs. Patko readily responded and in exchange for $2,000 was handed a pretentious-looking safety deposit box. As the men made a hurried exodus, she opened the box, then discovered that it contained four $1 bills wrapped around several newspapers. A year ago, Charles Bodgin, a millworker of Beech Bottom, had the same experience, only he took the men to a Wellsburg bank and discovered the trickery after he had exchanged the $2,000 wrapped in a handkerchief for the box, while the men left in an automobile.

On Monday evening a young man again approached Mrs. Patko at McKinleyville and claimed that "a man" confined in a hospital at Steubenville had sent him to take her to see him, giving him $10 to make the trip. Mrs. Patko obliged the man and journeyed to Steubenville with him in his machine. After reaching Steubenville they were met by a second man, whom Mrs. Patko at once recognized as one of the two men who had extracted the $2,000 from her in 1923. She immediately asked to be taken home and her wishes were complied with.

Arriving at home, Mrs. Patko, got in communication with Sheriff R. M. Lowe, who placed Spira under arrest. A hurried trip to Steubenville by the sheriff led to the arrest of his partner, and the two were confined to the Brooke county jail.

When arrested a strong box was found in their automobile which contained a roll of newspapers around which was wrapped four $1 bills held together by rubber bands.

SCHOOL BUILDING SURVEY PLANNED

Superintendent W. D. Johnston of the Weirton schools, member of the state committee to survey building construction, will make a survey of the Butler district, Hancock county, and Buffalo district, Brooke county, in the next two weeks.

Superintendent Johnston was chosen a member of the state committee early last week at the state teachers convention at Charleston, and schooled in the survey work under Dr. A. Halley of the Ohio State University at Charleston, before returning to this city on Sunday.

The survey work of this nature is being made throughout West Virginia and upon its completion a report will be forthcoming by the State Board of Education of its findings.

Pimples, Boils, Skin Eruptions

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin; makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Eats Sauerkraut Now, Feels Years Younger

"I couldn't find a thing to eat that would agree with my stomach. Even rice turned sour and caused stomach gas. An insurance man recommended Adlerika. I didn't have much hope of getting any relief for I had tried so many things. But the results I got from even the first bottle surprised me! Now I eat even sauerkraut and sausage without any bad effects. I sleep good and feel 10 years younger. I do my housework with ease again and find great pleasure in other work, too."—Mrs. M. L. Davis.

gently and naturally as taking a drink of water, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowels, bringing quick relief from gas bloating, intestinal stasis and chronic constipation.

The very FIRST dose of Adlerika often brings out astonishing amounts of old waste matter from the intestinal canal. This poisonous matter may have been in the intestines a long time, causing gas, headache, sleeplessness and many other symptoms. A treatment of just a FEW weeks with Adlerika often brings great permanent improvement in cases of so-called stomach trouble.

What Doctors Say

Dr. H. Louis Shoub, New York, states: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing action, tends to check the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. J. Lancaster, a physician of over a quarter century's experience, says: "In the treatment of gastrointestinal disorders, Adlerika has no equal."

J. E. Puckett, writes: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. Carl Weschke, graduate of Heidelberg University, Germany, first perfected Adlerika. It is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser known to science with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements.

Many physicians recognize Adlerika as the one dependable remedy for gas, intestinal stasis and chronic constipation. Unlike most medicines it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel.

Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika may bring out poisonous, gas-forming matter which you would never believe was in your system.

No matter what you have tried (or, the bowels and stomach, Adlerika will surprise you.

Sold by over 39,000 druggists.

Fabric Is Striking

This winter sports coat is distinctive, not because of the style, but for the novel cloth of which it is made. It is striped rodier in tan and wood shades with a large shawl collar of natural lynx. Myrna Loy is the model.

SETBACK HANDED REED COMMITTEE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—A second setback was handed the James A. Reed senate committee today in the fight to gain possession of the Delaware county ballots used in the November election when William S. Vare was elected to the senate. The federal court of appeals today dismissed the Reed committee appeal from the recent ruling of Federal Judge Thompson that the local courts had no jurisdiction in the affair and that the matter was up to the U. S. senate.

"Si" Chology May Have Hand In Three Big Games Saturday

PAST WEEK'S EVENTS KEEP GUESSERS BUSY

Irish Strong for Army as Result of Gophers' Tie; Expect Revival of Pitt Strength Against Cornhuskers.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Psychology, according to Webster, is the "science of the human mind or soul and its activities and capacities," which, as everybody knows, is a lot of gum arabic. Psychology is the assistant line and backfield coach under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame and Bill Roper at Princeton and the thing that makes a bum out of a football expert or a football expert out of a bum or both. It figures to have an abiding effect on three of the stand-out games on Saturday's schedule.

The games in question are those involving Notre Dame and the Army at the Yankee stadium, Pittsburgh and Nebraska at Pittsburgh and Yale and Princeton at New Haven. I might even include the Chicago-Illinois game at Urbana, for Stagg dearly loves to swing one from the shoe laces on the Illinois.

Outlook is Changed.

The funny thing about those first three games is that a week ago psychology would have copped the bets he is due to lay on Saturday. A week ago, he would have said that Princeton was in the moral position to beat Yale; that the Army was the short-end good thing against Notre Dame and that the undefeated Pittsburgh team was due to pick up, perhaps unexpectedly, a live one in Nebraska. But today, psychology has turned on those favored ones and is riding with the other fellow.

Yale, for example, has apparently lost Caldwell four days before the big game with the Tigers. This means a psychological gain and a physical loss, the latter being a decidedly poor trade, by the way. Caldwell not only was the only triple threat man in the outfit but the best goal kicker in the squad and personally I never heard of psychology doing either with any degree of proficiency.

Yet the thing isn't a dead loss, for Princeton was in the position Roper wants for the good, old under-dog harangue of the dressing room. He can't very well do it now, which will mean more to this football game than a lot of things the players may do or may not do on the field. So much for that.

Irish Set for Army.

Next, we may consider the Army-Notre Dame game, a week ago, Rockne said he feared the cadets more than Minnesota or Southern California and at that time he may have been right. The Army having taken one on the profile from Yale, had subsequently scored more than eighty points on two fairly strong opponents and was set for Notre Dame.

But now Notre Dame is set for the Army, which plays the piece on the other side of the record. If the Irish had beaten Minnesota last week end, it is doubtful whether Rockne would have been able to convince them that they were taking on something live in an outfit that had lost to Yale, which lost to Georgia and so forth. But Notre Dame didn't beat Minnesota. It got a mere tie and possibly was glad to get it. Also it gave an exhibition of fumbling that probably sent Rockne into a non-stop oration, lasting from Monday to Saturday. What I am trying to intimate very strongly is that I think Notre Dame will be sent out there on Saturday with psychology fairly bursting from its shoulder pads.

Pitt Reawakened.

As for Pitt and Nebraska, the latter looked like a fine "hunch" bet before last Saturday but the returns from that afternoon's work left the act with a fallen arch. For Pitt put in the day's scoring exactly on points on W and J, while Nebraska was running up 47 on Kansas, leaving Pittsburgh with no alternative but to believe that it is in for a somewhat violent afternoon on Saturday. It is difficult to get a football team in first that frame of mind but once you do it is hard to beat.

If Pitt really sends out a reawakened team here, it will be one of the great games of the year, with any man's choice as good as mine.

KNUTE POLISHES UP HIS PASSES

NOTRE DAME, Nov. 10.—The importance Knute Rockne is attaching to the passing game in his daily drills here indicates that he expects his Notre Dame warriors to win over Army Saturday via the air.

REAL "RED AND BLACK" BACKFIELD

One of the outstanding backfield quartets in intercollegiate football this fall is that of Washington and Jefferson's eleven which ranks as one of the four leading teams in the east. The "Four Patriots" are Bill Amos, fullback; Bob Heisel, halfback; Cleve Cook, right halfback, and "Red" Kirkman, quarterback. The school colors of W. and J. are red and black, Amos and Heisel have black hair while Cook and Kirkman sport fiery-hued locks.

Roper Not Satisfied.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 10.—Although the varsity managed to make a touchdown against a scrub team reinforced with such all-American notables as Keck, Wittmer, Slagle and Winn, Coach Roper today expressed himself as far from satisfied with the squad's performance with the Yale game but 48 hours away.

Special Car Ticket Sale OF BRUCE CALDWELL Continues

Seek Two Car Loads for Martins Ferry Clash.

WITH half of one car sold at noon today, Coach Joe Hurst was confident that a delegation as large as that which attended the Bellaire game will take in the Martins Ferry clash at Martins Ferry Saturday afternoon.

Arrangements for the trip to Martins Ferry are identical with those that existed for the Bellaire migration. The football team and the school band, in one car, will hop off early in the morning, followed by one or more specials about 11 o'clock, as well as numerous automobile parties.

Football followers here are asked to make up their minds early, but not often, and let Hurst know the result. It is necessary that he have some idea by Friday night at least as to the size of the crowd in order that adequate arrangements be made.

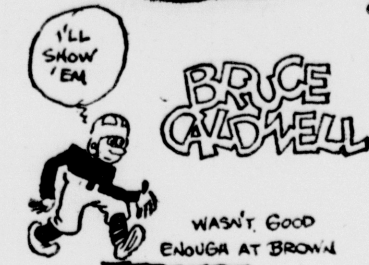

There's no question about seeing a football game. The gang that saw the Bellaire scrap will attest to the worthiness of that attraction and the Ferry tilt is going to be just as outstanding.

Smarting under the 12-0 defeat handed them by Bellaire, the Ohio Valley association champions, the Ferry eleven would enjoy nothing right now more than a victory over East Liverpool and Hurst is certain the Blue will have to be at its peak to thwart the designs of the down river aggregation.

Practice sessions are going along smoothly, with considerable attention focused on signals and tactics. Quarterback Skidmore's ankle is coming along in good shape and Tackle Smith's injuries are healing rapidly. It is probable the lineup will be intact for Saturday.

Princeton Faculty Officials Petition Yale to Reconsider Action; Star is Ordered Out for Practice Today.

Awaits Fate

BRUCE CALDWELL, Yale's great backfield star, already considered as a possible all-American, declared ineligible on the eve of the Princeton game because he had played with Brown in one or two games several years ago, awaits his fate today.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10.—

Yale today is re-considering its hasty and totally unexpected action of Tuesday night in banishing Bruce Caldwell, its star ball totter, from the varsity football team as an ineligible. In the meantime, Caldwell has been ordered by Coach Tad Jones to turn out for practice today.

With Coach Roper of Princeton publicly declaring that Yale will be harder to beat "without Caldwell than with him" and with the Princeton faculty committee voluntarily petitioning Yale to set aside this particular ineligibility rule "just this once," the Yale Athletic committee was in session on the matter today.

Caldwell was ruled off the team when it was disclosed he had freshman football at another college before entering Yale.

as the Yale athletic committee considers the request of Princeton faculty to reinstate the star.

Caldwell admitted he had played a few games as a Brown university freshman, but was unaware that it would make him ineligible at Yale. He wasn't considered such a wow at Brown, but at Yale he developed into a star, reaching the climax of his career this fall with such an exhibition of all-around backfield work as to make him an outstanding candidate for all-American honors.

Against Brown this year he was a big star, scoring all of Yale's points.

AT NEW YORK:—Izzy Schwartz, U. S. A., outpointed Willie Davies, Charleroi, Pa. (2).

Tommy Decario, Jersey City, outpointed Sammy Childs (4).

"IT WAS A DICKER AND THE BEST TRADER GOT THE BEST OF THE BARGAIN"

Before the days of self starters When electric headlights were extra equipment and closed cars built high like circus wagons began to make their appearance, any man who bought a used automobile was looked on as a gambler. He was.

The transfer of a used car in those days could scarcely be called a business transaction.

A man who owned a car that he wished to dispose of started out by asking a price far beyond what he expected to get.

A man who was willing to take a chance on a used car offered a price far below what he was willing to pay.

The seller came down, the buyer came up and eventually they came together.

It was a dicker and the best trader got the best of the bargain.

Sometimes a buyer who got what he thought was a low price, discovered at a later date that a low price does not always imply a profitable transaction.

And the buyer assumed all risk for the seller disclaimed responsibility immediately after the car was paid for.

Today any man can buy a used car with absolute assurance that he will get full value for his money.

Reliable dealers will sell used cars on a one price policy.

Every man who enters the store is quote the same price.

And the reliable automobile dealer guarantees the cars they sell.

Our guarantee is the broadest guarantee known in business. If the car is not as represented return it within 48 hours.

Tunney-Tex Break Stirrs Boxing World

Rickard Incredulous; Report Gene all "Steamed up."

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—In the wilds of the Adirondacks Gene Tunney picked up a telephone and delivered a message that had created a genuine sensation in boxing circles today.

The heavyweight champion's startling declaration that he hopes to defend his title three times next year and his implied threat of breaking away from Tex Rickard was received with amazement as a hitherto unsuspected break between Gene and the producer of million dollar purses.

Incredulosity was expressed by Rickard when the statement was first relayed to him at Madison Square Garden.

"I don't believe it," fumed Tex. And today he was still saying it. Nevertheless and notwithstanding Tex's disbelief, Tunney is planning to force a fulfillment of his contract with Rickard by one of May and then accept one or two other matches under other promotion in other cities.

The champion is considering four offers. One, he says, is from New York interests that will top the guarantee in his contract with Rickard. Another is for a fight in Chicago and still another is a Philadelphia proposition. A Pacific coast promotion has also entered the bidding.

"I don't believe it," reiterated Rickard last night at the garden. "Somebody must be kidding. I don't believe Tunney said any such thing. It must have been a practical joker on the wire."

"Why I can stop Tunney in an hour if he tries to fight for anybody else before October 1, 1928. There are no 'ifs' or 'ands' or 'buts' in his contract with me. All I have to do is put up my guarantee when they are due and tell Gene when and where he is to fight."

Even when confronted with indubitable proofs that Tunney really had been in communication with authorized agents here Tex was not convinced.

"Looks to me like somebody is trying to knock down Madison Square Garden stock," he said.

From other sources than Tunney direct but in close touch with the situation comes the story that the champion is highly displeased with the publicity Jack Dempsey has received since the Chicago engagement and his close association with Rickard.

Jack Kearns broadcasts the statement that Rickard is virtually Dempsey's manager. That impression is said to annoy Tunney extremely. Another sore spot is the film of the Chicago fight which Tunney's friends alleged were "doctored" to favor Dempsey.

Rickard meets all these innuendos with strong denials.

"I never managed a fighter or took a cent from one," he said as he sat chewing on his cigar. "That's just some of Kearns' mud throwing. All I ever got from Dempsey was thanks and a couple of gift cases."

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, says he knows nothing of any changes in Gene's plans, but admitted he had the champion on the telephone yesterday and that he seemed to be "steamed up" against Rickard.

LOSES GRID GAME BUT WINS BRIDE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Harold D. Cochran, captain of the Lafayette college football team, lost a football game to Georgetown here last Saturday, but he won a bride.

Capt. Cochran was introduced to Miss Peggy Tackett, a George Washington university coed, that night after the game. She sympathized with him in Lafayette's defeat. Sunday he called on her. Today it was announced that they were married the next day.

PAULINO-RISKO BOUT MARKS TIME

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—With Paulino, the Basque axman under suspension, Matchmaker McMahon announced today that he could progress no further toward a Paulino-Johnny Risco fight until the suspension had been lifted. Risco, Cleveland heavy, signed yesterday to fight Paulino at the Garden Nov. 25. Paulino's case comes up next Monday before the commission.

STILL SEEKING RETURN FIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Tiger Flowers, who hopes for another return bout with Mickey Walker for the world's middleweight title, "won't hold his breath until he gets it." The Tiger had signed for three bouts with Bing Conley, Tommy Lucas at Baltimore and Jack Russell at Chicago.

WANER BROTHERS SIGN CONTRACTS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 10.—Paul and Lloyd Waner, outfielders, have signed a 1928 contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates. It was announced today. Both got substantial increases in salary. But out of deference to President Barney Dreyfuss' policy of keeping his payroll secret, they refused to divulge the amount. They are appearing in vaudeville here this week.

Hurst Re-elected To Mayor's Job at New Philadelphia

Mayor W. S. Hurst, Democrat, was re-elected at New Philadelphia Tuesday, polling more votes than his two opponents, Edward Brown, Republican, and O. A. Herron, Independent, put together.

Mayor Hurst is a brother of J. E. Hurst, editor and owner of the New Philadelphia Times, and an uncle of Joe Hurst, local high school athletic coach.

Joe, however, is more interested right now in touchdowns than votes and hopes to poll a safe majority against Martins Ferry's high school eleven Saturday.

CHAMP HUESTON PERFORMS HERE

Tommy Hueston, champion pocket billiard player, performed before two large crowds yesterday afternoon and evening at the American Billiard parlors.

In addition to matches with local players, Hueston displayed his numerous tricks with the cue.

Last night he defeated Creed Morris, 125 to 49.

Practice Under Lights. CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 10.—By the aid of flood lights, Coach Zuppke worked long after dark last night shaping up his forward wall in anticipation of Chicago's threat Saturday. In his reserve linemen Zuppke seems to prefer brown to speed.

Practice in Mud. BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 10.—A sea of mud for a practice field is seriously hampering Indiana's preparation for the Northwestern conflict Saturday.

Points for Minnesota. ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 10.—Michigan's regulars will see no more service than is absolutely necessary against Navy Saturday. Coach Tod Wieman is more concerned over the tough Minnesota battle a week hence than over the scrap with the Midwesterners.

Drills in Aerial Play. IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 10.—Fearing another Wisconsin forward pass attack such as wrecked the Hawkeyes last year, Coach Ingwersen is drilling his Iowa gridgers in aerial defensive tactics in preparation for Saturday's game.

Joe Layman, of Los Angeles, outpointed Manuel Albers, Filipino, (6), Bobby Ernie of Oakland, outpointed Billy West of Pittsburgh, (6).

Wisconsin Loses Center. MADISON, Wis., Nov. 10.—Larry Shoemaker, giant sophomore center, is lost to Wisconsin for the homecoming clash with Iowa here Saturday. Shoemaker was summoned to his home at Herrin, Ill., by the death of his father.

Stagg's Eleven Hit. CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Reports from the University of Chicago today indicate that Stagg's Maroons will go in to the Illinois battle Saturday in the worst condition of the season. When Hugh Mendenhall, star back, failed to report for practice it was said he will play no more this year.

Ohio Regulars Back. COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 10.—All of Ohio State's regulars will be back in

Ray Wilde's Squad Faces Tough Tilt

Strong Follansbee Eleven at Chester Saturday.

COACH RAY WILDE's unbeaten Chester high school team Saturday will face a tough tilt with Follansbee high at Smith Field, Chester.

Fearing this encounter more than any other on the 1927 grid bill, Wilde has been working his squad strenuously during the past week. In view of the record compiled by the rampaging Brooke countians this season, the Chester eleven's unsullied record will be seriously threatened.

Under the direction of Coach "Stump" Frederick, former W. & J. athlete, Follansbee this year developed into one of the foremost grid aggregations in that section of the valley, boasting a hard hitting, speedy attack and a defense that has stopped many an opposition drive since the beginning of the season.

The Chester squad is in pretty good physical condition for the battle and inspired by the fact that a victory would be quite a feather in their headgear, count on scrapping to the last inch.

The game is scheduled to start at 2:30.

Bankers Take Double Wallop In Dux Race

Lose Four Out of Six to Gasoline Teams.

As a result of four defeats in six starts last night the Bankers of the Liberty duckpin league are trailing the race today, experiencing for the first time since the organization of the league in 1926 the trials and tribulations of a last place club.

In their regular match with the Gulf Gas, the Bankers dropped a pair in three starts and then, in a postponed series with the Super Flash, were thrown for a couple more losses.

Greene rolled 515 for high against the Gulf Gas, but Canine of the Super Flash, with 453 capped the honors in the second.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we will send you pre-paid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER.

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — Young Teddy Roosevelt is coming in for considerable fresh lambasting lately because, as assistant secretary, he didn't raise a row over Secretary Embury's transfer of the navy's oil funds to Secretary of the Interior Fall, when the two were fellow members of the cabinet in 1921-2. As a witness at the Fall-Sinclair trial the other day, he testified that he knew practically no more about it than the office boy.

For all that, young Col. Roosevelt left a reputation in Washington as a pretty good assistant secretary of the navy.

Folks who came into contact with him relate that he always had the gumption to make up his mind, one way or the other, and stand pat, right or wrong. They admit that he may have made some mistakes, but they incline to give him credit marks even for those, over the average departmental official who never goes wrong because he never decides on anything at all.

Young Teddy obviously thinks his father was the greatest man who ever lived and tries to be as exactly like him as he can. Naturally he'll never be recognized as having done a good job of it unless he makes out about twice as well as his original. To be young Teddy is a hard job.

SENATOR CURTIS has loomed up in Washington about three times his previous size since he came out flat-footedly for the presidency.

In doing it, he knocked the pussy-foot candidates groggy, too.

They expected him to be a "favorite son"—considered it quite possible he'd express a willingness to have a few complimentary votes cast for him — actually thought he stood an outside vice presidential chance, though rather old — and of late they've had to own that he was gaining presidential strength, due to corn belt developments.

Still, they hadn't really taken him very seriously. Now they must.

And the way he announced himself — an honest-to-goodness candidate or none at all — has a punch to it that takes the tuck out of mere science and footwork.

The first genuine crack to land, like wise! That counts.

On top of all that, it's Curtis. If he considers it worth his while to chip into this thing, it is.
